PROCEEDINGS: Order to Show Cause re Further Contempt Sanctions
Order to Show Cause why Permanent Injunction should not issue

The Court hears arguments of counsel as to each of the above-listed matters.

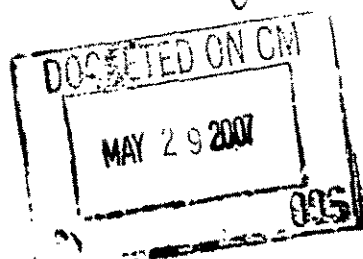

The Court finds defendant and its principal Kevin Medina (who is present in Court) in contempt of the Preliminary Injunction Order, and Orders that within seven days from today (by June 1, 2007) they shall provide all matters (as the Court now states on the record) to the plaintiffs, and within 48 hours from now they shall place the notice (as stated on the record) on their website and file with the Court an affidavit of compliance with same. With any default of the Orders as listed above, from June 2, 2007 the defendants shall be sanctioned $5,000.00 per day for every day the default has not been corrected, and the orders complied with, until complete compliance has been achieved.

The Court GRANTS entry of Permanent Injunction.

Plaintiffs shall submit a proposed order re the Further Contempt Sanctions as listed above; and shall submit proposed findings and an Order of Permanent Injunction.
